Malors, Borrau Co., Lil., July 2, 1856.

I wish to say a word in reference to a "new grading avatem," as many of the country dealers think it "pretty much of a swindle." At farmer from this place, a few days since, shipped his erop of wheat (foor ear) tools)—all fine wheat and all equally good. The first car was inspected "No. 1," and sold as 6fc. per bushel; while the cher three were inspected "No. 2," and sold at 65c.; subjecting him to a loss of af least 35c; for, had the wheat been sold on its ones merits, it would have all sold for the highest price, as it was perfectly evident to all who saw it that it was choice "No. 1." wheat.

It is assless for country bayers to pay an extra price for good wheat, for damp, dirry, and grown wheat is enjourned to the management of the start of the management of the start of the management of the start in the sections is much of a farce as the old one, and a call upon the Board of Trade to rid themselves of such a nuisance.

The wheat'in this section is much of it badly blighted, and a good portion more strock with the rust. From the best intermation 1 tan gather, there will not be half a crop in this country. Some farmers say their wheat is not worth outling. Your respectfully, "All Plants of the country of the General Superintendent of the Illinois Central is managed by him. Since the death of the labent population, and the worder of the fillinois tentral to the proper of the sections which and the good for worth outling. Your respectfully," Talk Plants.

Uniformity is the pa-"rent of despitism the world over, not only "in politics but in religion. Whouever that "doctrine is proclaimed, that all States must "be free or all must be slave, that all labor must be white or all must be black, that all persons in each State must have the same in due time take measures to a sollish or in some way or other get rid of the institution. Mr. Douglas asserts that such action on the part of the slaveholding States would be fatal to the liberties of the country. It would pro-

Our Exchanges on the Crops. (From the Alton (III.) Courier, 7th.)
Within a circuit of about a hundred miles, over the greater portion of which we have recently raveled, we have noticed but two fields of rusted or shriveled wheat. All concur in saying that Within a circuit of about a hundred miles, over the greater portion of which we have recently traveled, we have noticed but two fields of rush there is far less irjuity to the crop this year that there is far less irjuity to the crop this year that there is far less irjuity to the crop this year than in former years, in proportion to the whole amount rused. Altogether, the present crop will exceed that of any former year fully forty per cent. In quantity, and the quality is generally excellent, with such a splendid crop, it is but natural to expect than in former years. Accordingly we find that several contracts were made yesterday. This comparatively low figure will pay the farmer hand-omely, and will go far to liquidate the ladebtedness of the country.

More care appears to be taken with the wheat this season than formerly. Care is taken to have the conded of want of care in that respect.

On approaching Tripolities, we came upon the great sentral plain of Arradia, which is between two and three thousand feet above the level of the sex. Here the season was pearly a month later than on the plain of Arradia, which is between the season was pearly as month later than on the plain of Arradia sport is not sufficient drainage for this plain, and hence parts of it are marshy and missimite. One to whom poetry has made the name of Arradia spoiden asound, the key to landscapes of ideal loveliness, skys of perpetual spring, and a pure and happy race of men, will be bitterfr disappointed as he descends from the gasty Parthenian Hills. In this bleak region, surrounded by cold, asked mountains, with its rough harbarie Slavonian population, and its filthy den of a capital, he will not recognize one feature of the Arcadia of his dreams. But so it is: the "belie size dell' oro of Tasso and Hesiod never existed and never can exist, and Arcadia, which is for us the musical name of a pheautiful impossibility, signifies no more to the modern Greek than Swampacot or Sheboygan.

The Boston Advertiser prints the following ex of a letter from a gentleman of high character in Paris, to a friend of Senator Summer:

in Paris, to a friend of Senator Sumeer:

"Paris, June 17, 1858.

" "The opinion of both physicians, approved by Dr. George Hayward, of Boaton, was in favor of cauterization of the spine, in order to produce countegiritation, and in this year frend Dr. Brown-Sequend fully concurred. He made acveral careful saminations, and came to the conclusion that there was still congestion of the integuments of the brain, as well as other abnormal conditions. When the fact was an explained of burning the neck and back with irons at a white heat, he at once said: Try it without delay—in any form and to an extent. The operation was performed by Dr. Brown-Sequend, who wished Mr. Summer to inhale chloroform. This he dediced; and, refusing all anodynes, he went through the painful process without a word or a wince. It has been repeated since, and will be again to-day, for the fifth time."

CHAPTER II.

THE PRISC IN THE WOODS.

There we all st of, huddled up on the beach under the busing sun, with the pirates closing us in on every side—as forlorns company of helpless men, women and children as ever was gathered together out of any nation in the world. I kept my thoughts to myself) but I did not in my heart believe that any one of our lives was worth five migutes.

cver was gathered together out of any metion in the world. I kept my thoughts to myself; but I did not in my heart believe that any one of our lives was worth five minutes purchase.

The man on whose will our safety or our destruction depended was the Pirate Captain. All our eyes by a kind of instinct, fixed themselves on him—excepting in the case of the poor children, who, too frightented to cry, stood hiding their faces against their mothers' gowns. The ruler who held all the rufflans about us in subjection, was, judging by appearances, the very last man I should have picked out as likely to fill a place of power among any body of men, good or bad, under heaven. By nation, he was a Portugese; and, by name, he was generally spoken of among his men as The Don. He was a little, active, weazen, monkey-faced man, dressed in the brightest colors and the finest-made clothes I ever saw. His threecornered hat was smartly cocked on one side.
His coat-skirts were stiffened and stuck out,
like the skirts of the dandles in the Mall in London. When the dance was given at the Island, I saw no such lace on any lady's dress
there as I saw on his cravat and ruffles.
Round his neck he wore a thick gold chain, with a dlamond cross hanging from it. His lean, wiry, brown fingers were covered with heads and little feathers, and holding, at the lower part, four loaded pistols, two on a side, lying ready to either hand. His face was mere skin and bone, and one of his wrinkled checks had a blue soar running all across it, which drew up that part of his face, and showed his white shining teeth on that side of his mouth. An uglier, meaner, weaker man-monkey to look at, I never saw; and yet there was not one of his crew, from his mate to his cabin-boy, who did not obey him as if he had been the greatest monarch in the world. As tor the Sambos; including especially that evil-purpled soconnirel, Christian George King, they never went near him without seeming to want to roll before him on the ground, for the sake of vinaning the honor case of the poor children, who, too frigitered to cry, stook hiding therifess against the mothers' gown. The reliev who held sill the ruffines about as in subjection, was a the ruffine about as a subjection, was a first the ruffine about as a blikely to fill a hould have picked out as likely to fill a hould have picked out as likely to fill a hould have picked out as likely to fill a hould have picked out as likely to fill a hould have picked out as likely to fill a hould have picked out as likely to fill a hould have picked out as likely to fill a hould have picked out as likely to fill a hould have picked out as likely to fill a hould have picked out as likely to fill a hould have picked out as likely to fill a hould have picked out as likely to fill a hould have picked out as likely to fill a hould have picked out as likely to fill a hould have been done and hould have been done to have contained and ruffine. "A table of black man's back, with the sun on it, close under my nose—ab, Giant-Georgy, pah' pah!" says the Pirate Captain, putting the paper on the handkerchief, with another grimace expressive of great disgust. He began to write immediately, witing provided the sunder that with another grimace expressive of great disgust. He began to write immediately, witing growth that we write in the consider a little with himself; and once stopping, apparently, to control our numbers as we stood before him. To think of that villain knowing how to write, and of my not being able to make so much as a decent pothook, if it had been to save my life!

When he had done, he signed to one of his men to take the scented handkerchief of the sambo's back, and told the sailor be might keep it for his trouble. Then, holding the written paper open in his hand, he came forward a step or two closer to us, and said, with a grin and a mock bow, which made my fingers litch with wanting to be at him:

"I have the honor of addressing myself to the ladles. According to my reckoning there are fifteen ladies in all. Does any one of them belong to the chief officer; of the sloop?"

There was a fmomentary silence.

"You don't answer me," says the Pirate Captain. "Now, I mean to be answered. Look berry, women." He drew one of his four indeed of a me, "that I cannot take the content of his four indeed of a me, "that I cannot take the content of his four indeed of a me, "that I cannot take the content of his four indeed of a me, "that I cannot take the content of his four indeed of a me, "that I cannot take the content of his four indeed of a me, "that I cannot take the content of his four indeed of a me, "that I cannot take the content of his four indeed of a me, "that I cannot take the content of his four indeed of a me, "that I cannot take the content of his four indeed of a me, "that I cannot take the content of his four indeed of a me, "that I cannot take the content of his four indeed of a me, "that I cannot take the content of his word.

He rested the barrel of the pistol against Tom Packer's head, and locked at his watch, as perfectly composed, in his cat-like crueity, as if he was waiting for the boiling of an egg.

"If you think it best not to answer him, ladies," says Tom, "never mind me. It's my trade to risk my life; and I shall lose it in a good cause." If you think it best not to answer him, ladies," says Tom, "never mind me. It's my trade to risk my life; and I shall lose it in a good cause." If you was the mind the piston of the slope, I am bis sister." She stoped, and whispered anxiously to Mrs. Macer, who was standing with hes. "Don't acknowledge yourself, as I have done—you have childred."

"Good!" said the Pirate Captain. "The answer is given, and the brains my stop in the brave man's head." He put his watch and istol back, and took two or three quick puffs at his cigar to keep it alight—then handed the paper he had written ou, and his perfull of in to Miss Maryon.

"Read that over." he said, "ar'd sign it for yourself, and the women and children with you."

Saying those words, he turned round briskly on his heel, and began talking, in a whisper, to Giant Georgy, the big English must. What he was talking about, of course, I could not hear; but I noticed that he motioned several times straight into the literior of the country.

"Davis," said Miss Maryon, "look at this." She crossed before her sister, as she spoke, and held the paper which the Pirate Captain had given to her, under my cycs—my bound of the paper Lowelling, in a whisper, to Giant Georgy, the big English must. What he was talking about, of course, I could not hear; but I rot get the shame I efft, when I was obliged to acknowledge to Miss Marion that I could not read one word of it!

"There are better mee than me, ma'am," I said, with a sinking heart, "do can read it, and advise you for the best."

"None, whose advice. I would so willingly take? I have seen enough to feel sure of that. Listen, Davis, while I read;"

He again drew out his watch and pistol; but, this time, it was my head that he touched with the barrel.
"When Tom Packer spoke for himself, Miss a little while ago," I said, "please to consider that he spoke for me."
"Another brave man!" said the Pirate Captain, with his spe's grin. "Am I to fire my pistol this time, or am I to put it back again as I did before?"

Miss Maryon did not seem to hear him. Her kind eyes rested for a moment on my face, and then looked up to the bright Heaven above us.

Murder and Lynch Law.

Laxinoron, Ky., July 10.—Joseph Beard, City Marshal, was bratally murdered at four o'clock this morning, while endeavoring to arrest a man named Barker, who was engaged in a fight in the market house. Barker stabbed Beard, the knile entering the right side, severing a long and entering the heart, killing him instantly. The clitizers were much excited, and Barker was taken to the watch house, thence to the jail. He was afterwards taken from the jail by the clitizers and marched to the court house yard. A temporary scaffold was erected from the ourt house window, second story, and at 8 o'clock, A. M., Barker was swung off. The rope broke and he fell to the ground, a distance of about 30 feet, braising his face considerably. Harrecovered in a few moments, and was again taking up to the window and another rope attached. He was then made to jump from the window again. He still hangs, and will till Murder and Lynch Law.

testimony of the officers, Edward addressed the Court as follows:

You see, my Christian friend, we came in from Buffalo, a flying, three days ago, and tied up, on the North Branch. Last night, I beard there was going to be a prosition and lots of speechlifying, and says I to myself, says I, "let's go and see it." You move had curfoolity to see the Little Gillinois. Well, I went, and I didn't think it amounted to much shuths, so a fellow took me to a dance-home, or something or that kind. There was a great time there, I tell you; I beat the procession all holler. There were slathers of women, with hig hoops and other faxin's, and lots of grog. Well, I took to drinkin', and my head becan to turn. However, I came out of it first-rate. You see I had been strapping down all day, and I was greasy outside and limide, and felt kinder shatted to go to my bearding house, so I bunked out under an old building and gos fast asieep, and the first thing I knew, a policeman had his paw on me. Now, my Coristian friend, would you like to hear the story of my life? It's great.

"My Christian friend" had heard enough, and fined the speaker $10, for which he gave thanks.

The County Convention To-Day. We trust the delegates in the Republic County Convention, which meets to-day, we remember that they are white men and R that candidate, monopolize the county de-gation, and in effect disfranchise one-third and would resort to any measures n the two candidates for Congress of any a quie-cence in plans likely to turn a Repub can Convention into a Tammany Hall mol and we are equally constrained to tell the cited friends of the principals, that if the wish to disgrace themselves, disgrace the party, and secure the privilege of being I out of future Conventions, they can kill these birds with one stone, by carrying have some rights which white men are bon to respect, and to the other that splitting Convention is exactly the thing which the tegrity of the party will not suffer them do. We do not assert that either of the ee discussion last night after the adjou ment of a couple of caucuses. Before and After the Speech.

Before and After the Speech.

If the admirers of Judge Dunglas think all, or a majority, of the crowd that went to him list Friday night, are going to support at the polls, they are hugging a huge delast Hundreds went there with faiendly feelings, left chaggrined and sorrowful. His opposition the Lecompton bill made them think that had progressed in a freesoil direction; when they heard him declars that he awallo the Dred Scott dectrine, with all its pro-slatenormities, their aspectations were willed. the Dred Scott dectrine, with all its pressits enormities, their expectations were witted, it feelings were wounded, and they turned as more in sorrow than in larger. They hoped for better things and were asily dipointed, when they found he had nothing be to offer to them than his Cincipanti platform Dred Scott decision, and his Squatter Saverels exploded humbug; and thousands of that me were indignant when they heard him uter shampful mixerpresentations of finedrin's positive repeat the semants that is in everyomouth, that Judge Douglas left the beloof the Tremont House with vasity fewer friends: the Tremont House with vastly fewer friends Lincoln and Donglas.
